Richmond Police To Hold Annual Inspection May 17

'ROUND 'N' 'ROUND

A book written in the utmost frankness, yet nevertheless good reading, is Robert von R. Graves' "Goodbye to All This."

Graves, as probably most of you know, is a British poet, who harps upon life as real, etc.

How, some-er, you'll enjoy his latest book, if your taste runs in that direction.

Graves tells an interesting story of public school life in England, as he saw it.

He served during the war as an officer and his tales of the trenches and of the first two years of fighting before America came in, are interesting.

Graves also touches upon the customs of the British army and the strong regimental spirit.

In discussing the history of his regiment, (The Royal Welch Fusiliers), Graves declared that the regiment had never met defeat, but that the one blot it had upon its banners was the surrender of Yorktown to General Washington's army in the American War of Independence.

There are thousands of persons who labor under the impression that the National Guard regiments are the same as the old state militia. You still hear, uninformed newspapermen speak of the guardsmen as the state militia.

This is quite incorrect. Your old state militia was more of a social organization than anything else. Officers were elected by the men, the supplies were furnished by the state and the men were paid by the state. When war was declared, militiamen who refused to leave their state were perfectly within their rights.

But your National Guard of today is not a social organization. It is rated as America's second line of defense.

The men are clothed, fed and paid by the United States government. The governor of the state is the honorary head of the organization and he may call it out in case of a state emergency.

But the real control of the national guard rests with the United States government. Competent instructors are furnished the guard by the regular army.

At the summer training camps you will find a majority of the instructors for the regiments are old-time army sergeants, whose home is in the army. There is always a fair sprinkling of smart West Point graduates on hand to assist in the instructions.

Each year the Guard is inspected by the United States Army. If an outfit isn't up to snuff, it is disorganized. The standards set for the National Guard are almost as strict as the regular army.

And when one considers the number of National Guard companies, battalions and regiments that are rated on par with regular army outfits, one can realize that these so-called amateur soldiers are not such amateurs.

MAYOR WILL REVIEW FORCE

Richmond policemen are shining up their buttons, applying two-in-one on their number "twelves" and are sending their best uniforms to the cleaners.

Police Chief Dan Cox and Captain L. E. Jones are taking their new uniforms, brass buttons and gold lace and everything out of cold storage and are preparing to turn out in uniform.

There are two things that cause Chief Cox and Captain Jones to put on their uniforms—the annual police inspection is both of them.

Review Planned
This year the inspection will be held May 17 at two o'clock in the afternoon at the Lincoln school gymnasium.

At that time Richmond will be given an opportunity to turn out and see what a first class police force the city has.

The force has been going through close order drill in preparation for the inspection and will stage a neat exhibition of company drill.

Lance Guard
Mayor A. L. Paulsen, City Manager James A. McVittie and other city officials will be on hand to see the members of the department "strut their stuff."

Last year's review drew a large crowd at the school grounds. It was at this time that a number of citizens saw for the first time what a first class department exists in this city and why the local department has a reputation in this part of the state as being one of the finest police forces.

Chief Cox will be in charge of the review.

COTTAGE TO BE BUILT

Another cottage will be built in Richmond.

Yesterday F. C. Hoskings was given a permit by City Building Inspector A. J. Hurley to construct a four room cottage on Thirteenth street between Roosevelt and Barrett avenues at a cost of $2250.

Hoskings will do the building.

George Pope received permission to build two chicken houses on Panama avenue between Panhandle and San Pablo avenues at a cost of $100.

Local Rotarians At Oakland Meet

Due to the majority of the members of the Richmond Rotary club attending the 15th annual convention of Rotary clubs of California, Nevada and Hawaii in Oakland yesterday, no meeting was held here.

A feature of the second day session of the conclave was the election of Arthur S. Crites of Bakersfield club to the position of governor of the second district Rotarians.

Speakers at the closing sessions included C. P. Anderson of Albuquerque, Max Howinski, of Oakland, Herbert E. Harris and Dr. Amelia Reinhardt, president of Mills College.

There were five bands in the Class 'A' contest, which was won by Tamalpais high school.

Tamalpais also won the orchestra contest, and Vallejo placed third.

The thieves broke a lock on the door leading into the store, then saved a hole through a partition and gained entrance to the Western States Grocery Store.

The exact amount of the loot obtained by the thieves could not be learned this morning.

The robbery was discovered by Traffic Officer Floyd Gilbert of the El Cerrito police department.

MISS PICKFORD CALLED IN THEFT CASE

LOS ANGELES, May 9.—UP—Mary Pickford, noted screen star, appeared today at the preliminary hearing of Bantappa Raw, 23-year old Hindu seer, long enough to deny any friendship with Raw and disclaim his assertion that she had given him money.

Raw, charged with grand theft of $4,300 from Mrs. Adele Banks, Allenhand, claimed after his arrest several days ago, that he was a friend of the actress.

Miss Pickford was asked four questions after she was sworn as a witness:

"Do you know the defendant?"

"Did you ever see him before?"

"Did you ever give him a $10,000 Liberty Bond?"

"Did you ever have any dealings with the defendant?"

To each question Miss Pickford answered "no" and then hurried from the courtroom. She evaded cameramen.

After Miss Pickford's appearance, Mrs. Allenhand continued her testimony relating to the asserted "love technique" of Raw, which she declared played an important part in persuading her to loan him money.

Scouts Plan Outdoor Meet

Members of the Richmond Boy Scout troop No. 3 will hold an outdoor meeting at Alvarado park on next Tuesday evening under direction of the Rotary club, sponsors of the troop.

The meeting will be started at 6:30 o'clock, with a treasure hunt, a game based on the compass. A prize will be awarded the winner.

There will be no cooking tests as originally planned, but outdoor tests will be held in preparation for a troop revue to be held in June.

The outdoor meeting will be the third of a series to be conducted throughout the summer months.

NOMINATION GIVEN TO SENATE

WASHINGTON, May 9.—UP—President Hoover today appointed Owen Josephus Roberts, a big-framed, iron-jawed and affable Philadelphia lawyer of national fame to the supreme court. Roberts is 55, famous for his work in prosecuting the oil cases for the government, and well known for his corporation law work.

The nomination was sent to the senate, where it was referred to the judiciary committee for investigation, exactly 48 hours after the senate's rejection of Mr. Hoover's first nominee, Federal Judge John J. Parker, of North Carolina.

The vacancy is that created by the death two months ago of Justice Sanford, of Tennessee.

Roberts is a republican of conservative tendencies, and is expected to be confirmed. But opposition is almost certain, partly because his record indicates conservatism, and partly because he is regarded as a wet.

Battle On
Senator Sheppard, democrat, of Texas, author of the Eighteenth Amendment, indicated opposition to Roberts because of a reported anti-prohibition speech, but later retracted this because of information that Roberts denied making any such statement.

A reprint of a newspaper account, found in the Congressional Record, told of a speech Roberts made in New York February 16, 1923, attacking the Eighteenth amendment as an insertion of "policy regulation" in the constitution, which he held was thereby reduced to the level of a city ordinance. In the same speech, Roberts was quoted as attacking the government for "too much (Continued on Page 5)

SCHOOL ENDS PAPER DRIVE

A city-wide paper drive conducted in each of the elementary and junior high schools ended yesterday with what is believed to be a record accumulation. It was announced by W. T. Helms, superintendent of schools.

The Lincoln school was thought to have gathered together the largest collection, having over 19 tons of paper stored in the basement of the building. One ton of old tires will also be sold.

Funds received from the sale of the junk will be used to purchase school supplies, including educational motion picture reels. The milk fund will be increased with part of the amount received. The drive has been underway for two weeks.

Provide Suspect Given Release

W. M. Brown, charged with failure to provide, appeared Thursday at the justice court of Judge A. A. Alstrom and promised to pay his wife $40 each month. He was released on his own recognizance, although the case was not dismissed pending fulfillment of his agreement. James F. Hoy, deputy district attorney, prosecuted the case.

Burbank To Copy Richmond High Gym

Construction of the Richmond high school gymnasium will be copied in part by the school trustees at Burbank, it was indicated yesterday after a visit to the local institution by A. B. Carlson, principal of the Burbank high school.

AIMEE IN $3,000,000 MOVIE SUIT

OAKLAND, May 9.—UP—J. Roy Stewart, actor and motion picture director had on file here today a suit, involving upward of $3,000,000, in which Mrs. Aimee Semple MacPherson and Cornwell Ormsby, attorney, are named the defendants.

Suit was filed to determine what rights Mrs. MacPherson and Ormsby have to the net profits from a motion picture film to be produced depicting the life of the famous evangelist, with particular emphasis on his version of the Long Beach kidnapping. The name of the picture, a talkie, is to be "Clay in the Hands of the Potter."

The complaint, which has already been served on Ormsby, alleges that he entered into a contract with Stewart whereby Mrs. MacPherson was to take the leading role in the picture of her life and the kidnapping episode.

It is also alleged that Ormsby claims one-third of 50 percent of the expected net profits and that Mrs. MacPherson was to get two thirds. Stewart and his associates were to get the remaining 50 percent. This latter phase, however, was not set out in the complaint.

Stewart alleges Mrs. MacPherson questioned Ormsby's right to enter into the contract but that later the attorney secured a written ratification of the agreement from the evangelist.

The director asserts he spent $200,000 on preliminary expenses to the shooting of the picture and that he has plenty of financial backing but his backer will not go ahead until the controversy is settled.

Seniors Paid Honor At Dance

The members of the Richmond Union high school gave their official farewell to the graduating seniors of the school last night at the semi-annual farewell dance.

The festivities took place in the high school cafeteria. Music was furnished by Gay Vargas' Red Peppers.

The cafeteria was attractively decorated, and program cards were appropriately designed, bearing the words: "Senior Farewell."

Preparations for the dance were made under the direction of Patricia McAndrews.

Fire Destroys Canning Plant

McMINNVILLE, Ore., May 9.—UP—The building equipment and packed fruit of the Wells Packing company was destroyed by fire of undetermined origin today at a loss estimated at $43,000. L. W. Wells, of Portland, president of the company, said there was a possibility that tramps, sleeping in the basement, may have caused the blaze.

TROOPS END INDIAN RIOT

BOMBAY, India, May 9.—UP—Revolutionists' hatred against British rule, which flared most fiercely at Sholapur, left the country tense today but comparatively quiet as the army cooperating with the police restored order.

Refugees reached Poona, 75 miles southeast of Bombay, said the few European women and children remaining at Sholapur, were living in railway carriages. Troops patrolled the city, where several were killed, including police, and scores injured in the most severe rioting which has marked the so-called civil disobedience campaign.

Two trainloads of Europeans and Anglo-Indian women and children reached Poona during the night and early today fleeing before the uncontrolled fury of the aroused mobs in Sholapur. They recounted exciting tales of the riots during which thousands of madened natives attacked the police and for a time held virtual control of the city.

Sections of Sholapur were in shambles today, the refugees reporting the rioters succeeded in setting fire to shops and, at the height of the encounter, rushing into the court house, which was burned.

At least five policemen were still missing, reports reaching Bombay said. The refugees told of how the bodies of slain policemen were burned in the streets, as showers of stones fell on the constables who sought to disperse the riot.

There was some fear of communal riots at Lahore and elsewhere tomorrow, on the occasion of the Mohammedan festival of Idulzha commemorating Abraham's sacrifice. In the past, the festival has caused numerous Hindu and Moslem conflicts, due to the sacrifice of cows and goats by the Moslems. The Hindus regard these animals as sacred.

CITY'S NEGRO QUARTERS FIRED

SHERMAN, Texas, May 10 (Saturday)—UP—After a day and a night of rioting, during which a mob of 5000 fought with state national guardsmen, some 300 men dragged a negro's body thru the streets here early today.

The body was that of George Hughes, 41, accused of assaulting Mrs. Drew Harlow—and was taken from the vault of the Grayl son courthouse after midnight. Hughes had been suffocated to death when the building burned yesterday after rioters set it on fire.

Later the mob set fire to a block of buildings owned by negroes and used for business establishments.

Forming a huge circle, the frenzied crowd growing in size to almost 1000 persons, burned the negro's body on a huge funeral pyre, fed by lumber torn off the nearby residences.

There was no fire fighting equipment left to be used in battling the blaze which soon leveled the frame buildings.

Guardsmen who had come to restore order, but who ultimately were forced to retreat to the county jail after the mob attacked them, watched the mob take the negro through the streets.

They were helpless, and officers, fearful of new rioting, refused to allow them to leave the outskirts of the jail property.

Battle Starts
Fighting between the guardsmen and amob broke out for the second time last night when the guards were marched from the county jail to the courthouse, two blocks away. They had been ordered (Continued on Page 8)

FIREMEN WIN IN CITY LOOP

The Richmond Firemen showed that they are as handy on a diamond as they are on a ladder by defeating the Mechanics' Bank aggregation, 4 to 3, yesterday in a Richmond City Twilight baseball league contest.

Yesterday's game was the debut of both the fire-fighters and the Mechanics' Bank athletes for the present season. Their first showing proved them as nines of the first calibre.

The game was an exceptionally even battle for seven fast, hot innings. The Mechanics' started the contest by collecting two runs in the first half of the first canto. The runs were scored by San Miguel and San Filippo. The Firemen retaliated in the second when Kamb and Buys trotted home. Kamb and Grady garnered two more runs for the Firemen in the fourth, while Hutton crossed home plate in the last of the fourth to raise the bankers' total. There was no more scoring during the hard-fought fifth, sixth, and seventh innings.

Kamb twirled a clever game for the victorious fire fighters, whiffing 13 slugging batters. He was nipped for six hits. Bono, young high school chucker, occupied the mound for the Mechanics' Bank outfit, and allowed nine hits. All the Firemen managed to connect with his hard-pitched ball, but Bono was capably supported by a wide-awake squad, and the damage done by the opposing swatters was not heavy.

San Filippo gained the hardest hit of the game, knocking the sphere for an easy triple. Kamb and Grady both collected doubles.

OAKS DEFEAT SENATORS 2 TO 1

SAN FRANCISCO, May 9.—UP—Four teams of the Pacific Coast league were again bunched close together in the fight for leadership of the circuit after games today.

The fourth place Oakland Oaks, by beating Sacramento, 2 to 1, while the San Francisco Missions were trouncing Los Angeles, 17 to 13, were only one game behind the Angels, who were still at the top. Sacramento held second place, only a fraction of a game ahead of the San Francisco Seals, who beat Hollywood, 9 to 3.

After taking three defeats in a row, the Missions scored ten runs in the first two innings. The Angels closed in, however, and were only one run behind in the eighth inning when Ted Pillette, a pinch hitter for the Missions, hit a homer with the bases loaded.

Hurst, Oakland pitcher, was on the mound for Oakland and allowed only four hits but the Senators might have won the contest except for two errors which contributed to the Oakland runs in the fourth inning.

The Seals started the scoring with four runs in the third inning and that number alone would have beaten Hollywood.

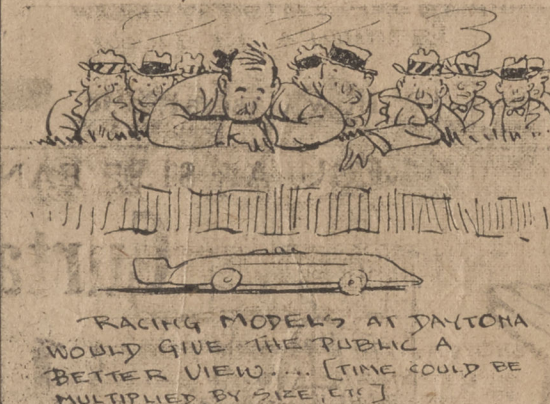

Seattle broke a tie with one run in the sixth and beat Portland, 3 to 2.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 9.—UP—Angus Snyder, 195, Kansas City, gained a 10 round decision here tonight over Leon Bombo, Chevalier, 210 San Francisco, the negro heavyweight who upset Primo Carnera's paragoning tour of the United States.

Thompson Wins Title From Jackie Fields

DETROIT, May 9.—UP—Black Jack Thompson, landed his right uppercut all about the head of Welterweight Champion Jackie Fields in a 15 round battle tonight and surprisingly became the first negro to hold the 147 pound championship since Joe Wolcott was crowned champion after beating "Rube" Ferns in 1901.

Thompson was awarded the decision after 15 sessions of milling which remained so intense that Referee Sam McClelland seldom found it necessary to touch either fighter.

The 25 year old negro, a veteran of 261 fights, advanced flat footedly into Fields, disregarding the champion's left hooks, through the fight and was the better man from the second to the ninth and the tenth to the fifteenth.

Fields had the negro in a bad way when he landed several punches to the head in the second round but Thompson had the champion hanging on in the thirteenth and fourteenth.

WILLIAM BOYD AS OFFICER IN FILM

What of the accents in talking pictures. One of three things might happen to them. They might prove valuable if cast properly, they might be overcome or they might force the possessors out of motion pictures.

In "Officer O'Brien," a Pathe dialogue picture, starring William Boyd and directed by Fay Garnett, two of these things happened. A wide assortment of finely developed accents were either overcome or were made invaluable to the actors in portraying their characters.

Bill Boyd, the star, plays an American Irish lieutenant of police. He overcame his natural southern drawl to play the part. Dorothy Sebastian, who has the leading feminine role, was born in Birmingham, Alabama. She, too, had to dispense with the Mason-Dixon accent.

Ernest Torrence, playing Bill's father, had to forget that he was born in Edinburgh, Scotland, and become an Irish-American. Clyde Cook, in the character of a cockney, needed only to emphasize his natural Australian accent to fill the bill perfectly. Toya Fujita, as Kono, the Japanese servant, was in his own native character and had no difficulty. The others in the cast—Arthur Housman, Paul Hurst, Russell Gleason and Tom Mahoney—had merely to be themselves.

"Officer O'Brien," which will be seen at the Fox-California theater tomorrow and Monday is an original story by Tom Buckingham and is a tense underworld drama. It is one of the most powerful stories in which Boyd has appeared since "The Volga Boatman."

Also on the program is an Our Gang comedy entitled "When the Wind Blows."

Nancy And Dick

NANCY CARROLL and Richard Arlen in a scene from "Dangerous Paradise," which will be shown at the Fox California theater today.

'DIVINE ORIGIN' OF DRY BODY TOLD

WASHINGTON, May 9.—UP—Divine origin was ascribed to the anti-saloon league today by its superintendent, Scott McBride, in testifying under oath before the senate lobby committee.

The league was "born of God, and will fight on while he leads," McBride said in a sharp exchange that brought from his interlocutor Senator Blaine, Rep. Wm. C. Clegg, the charge that this remark was "sacreligious and outrageous."

"Those things in the way of progress of the Kingdom of God must get out of the way," McBride continued. Apparently he meant those opposed to prohibition.

"What authority have you for claiming the league is the son of God," excitedly demanded Blaine, brandishing a pencil at the witness.

"The league began with a prayer meeting at Oberlin, Ohio."

"Did you get a message from God that gave birth to your organization?"

"No."

No Notice

"What notice did you receive of this conception?"

"The fact that it was born at prayer meeting. We never have a meeting that we do not open with religious services. We are led by the leadership of God, just as the church activities are."

"I don't believe God would approve of some of your practices," remarked Blaine, adding that he believed McBride's statement "is a sacrilegious and outrageous thing."

By this time, the two dry members of the committee present, Caraway, Dem., Ark., and Robinson, Rep., Ind., began to protest that this had little to do with lobbying. Caraway interjected that men might differ about the Divinity angle.

Work Told

"Do you have Divine guidance?" Blaine persisted.

"Yes."

Then they turned to other sides of the league's work. Blaine produced a statement which he said indicated that the late Wayne B. Wheeler, for the league, dictated the appointments of the first two prohibition commissioners, John F. Kramer and Roy A. Haynes.

"Dangerous Paradise," Nancy Carroll's first starring film, is a real moving picture, strengthened and supported by clever dialogue. A tropical background for the thrilling love story intensifies the gripping adventure and William Wellman, the director, has made the most of his situations. Climax follows climax in ever mounting crescendo until the final surprise solution of the always enthralling plot.

You will like "Dangerous Paradise" as well as any moving picture you have seen in some time. It's the new entertainment in all perfection.

Nancy Carroll is seen as a girl musician, playing in a South Sea Island orchestra. Menaced by her employer and the hotel proprietor, played by Clarence H. Wilson and Warner Oland, respectively, she seeks safety on a nearby island where Richard Arlen, a refugee, lives alone. Adventure follows adventure as Nancy falls deeply in love with the scornful Arlen. How her daring sacrifice finally awakens a reciprocal love in him makes a moving episode, a delightful ending to a splendid picture.

In addition to Arlen, Oland and Wilson, the supporting cast includes that always interesting player, Gustav von Seyffertitz, and the popular Francis McDonald. The story is based on incidents from a novel by Joseph Conrad and many of the famous novel's thrilling characters are wonderfully portrayed. "Dangerous Paradise" is certainly a picture you should not miss seeing.

Also on the program is a talking comedy "His Operation."

Richard Arlen Stars In Film Play At Fox

A smashing good story, Nancy Carroll's beauty and talent, and Richard Arlen's winning personality are three features which make "Dangerous Paradise," which will be shown for today only at the Fox-California theater one of the most enjoyable entertainments to reach this town in some time.

HOOT GIBSON TALKS IN WESTERN

There's never a dull moment along "The Long, Long Trail," Hoot Gibson's latest, Universal thriller, which comes to the screen of the Richmond theater today.

Riding, fighting, romance and humor feature every minute of "The Long, Long Trail." It is Hoot Gibson at his most exciting best. It is a talking picture.

Hoot plays the part of a bashful cowboy who falls in love with a beautiful girl from the East. Everything depends on his winning the rodeo sweepstakes, and then villainy makes it hot for Hoot.

Especially interesting are scenes made at the Salinas, California rodeo. Hoot and his outfit stayed a week on location at the rodeo, and most colorful and exciting scenes were obtained.

Hoot knows all there is to know about exciting rodeo scenes. He once carried off the all-around championship at the famous Pendleton roundup.

Action and humor abound in the picture. The romantic element is supplied by beautiful Sally Eilers, one of the most charming and successful of the younger actresses of the screen.

The notable cast includes Kathryn McGuire, James Mason, Archie Ricks, Walter Brennan and Howard Truesdell.

Arthur Rosson directed "The Long, Long Trail." It was adapted for the screen by Howard Green from the novel, "Ramblin' Kid," by Earl W. Bowman.

Police Ruin Man's Library

SEATTLE, May 9.—UP—All he wanted was a library of his own, but the police kept interfering.

Petty larceny charges have been filed against him again, this time for theft of a library book worth $2.40. Police recovered 34 books at his home.

The Christian Doctrine medal, founded in memory of the late Most Reverend Patrick William Jordan, second Archbishop of San Francisco and annually awarded by his successor, Archbishop Hanna goes to James T. Davis of San Francisco.

The Graves medal for engineers, given to the senior student of engineering whose work in designing and drafting is of superior grade, goes to Elvin A. Svendsen, registered from San Francisco.

The Collegian medal for exceptional work in journalism goes to William A. Johnson of Martinez, editor of the college weekly. The Cogan medal for public speaking was awarded to Harold F. Dobbins, registered from Oakland.

John J. Fitzgerald, registered from San Francisco, won the Justin Philosophy medal founded in honor of the first president of St. Mary's Brother Justin.

Honor Student

This year's graduating class has eight honors men. Those earning the highest honor, Maxima cum laude, are: Edward J. Smiddy, Leon and A. Thomas, William R. Johnston and Bernard J. Dobbins. The degree, agna cum laude is given to Paul M. Meyer, and Cum laude honors are awarded to Adrian C. Gilbert and Tyrrell Martinez.

Student valedictorians are Leonard A. Thomas, former student body president, who speaks on "The Humility of Leadership" and Edward J. Smiddy, medal winner, whose subject is "Divine Discontent."

The entire graduating class will assist at mass and holy communion in the college chapel at which the Archbishop Hanna will officiate. The customary graduation breakfast tendered by the faculty will follow. The commencement exercises will be held on the steps of the chapel, a custom inaugurated last year. More than one hundred graduates and faculty members will take part in the colorful academic parade preceding the exercises. The program will be concluded when the Archbishop of San Francisco gives solemn Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament.

Wife Stays Away, Man Asks Divorce

SEATTLE, May 9.—UP—For eight years Frederick C. Taylor sought to have his wife come to him, but she refused, he told Judge Robert M. Jones here in asking for a divorce from Collette Taylor, who he married in France in 1922.

When Taylor's company transferred him from France to Africa Collette stayed in her native country, he said. When he was again transferred, this time to Japan, she again preferred France.

But when he was transferred to America and she refused to accompany him, he decided to ask for a divorce.

GALLANT FOX, SANDE WIN PREAKNESS

PIMLICO, Md., May 9.—UP—Earl Sande and Gallant Fox, a thoroughbred combination, fought their way home to victory today in the 39th running of the Preakness.

A great jockey and a gallant horse rewarded the faith of the countless thousands who had backed them to win, and Gallant Fox came through the stretch to beat out Thomas M. Cassidy's Crack Brigade by three-quarters of a length. Walter J. Salmon's Snowflake trailed them to the wire by six lengths.

Sande and Gallant Fox earned $51,925 for William Woodward, New York sportsman, master of the Belair stud, in addition to the prized Woodlawn vase, and great glory for themselves.

It took all of Sande's wizardry to win the Preakness.

Close Race

It wasn't any fault of Gallant Fox, that that stout-hearted son of Sir Gallahad 3rd was extended to the limit to beat Crack Brigade by less than a length. For the Belair stud colt, now the outstanding favorite to win next week's Kentucky Derby, had all the worst of the breaks and had to be a real champion to win.

The race was strictly a two horse affair. Walter J. Salmon's Snowflake, the only filly in the field of 11, trailed Crack Brigade, to the wire, John L. Pontius' Michigan Boy, a winter track champion, wound up fourth, while the veteran Johnny Maiben brought the Howe stable's Gold Brook in fifth.

The big crowd which had backed the Gallant Fox-Sande combination down to even money, gasped in dismay when Gallant Fox, breaking from the inside, got away badly and then was pitched back.

While Sande had to take up his mount, Crack Brigade, ridden by George Ellis, was away winging, closely followed by the Seagram stable entry, Sweet Sentiment.

Brigade in Front

Crack Brigade was well in front after the long run to the first turn, while Sande was hiding his time with Gallant Fox. Once straightened out in the back stretch, Sande let his mount out a bit and Gallant Fox responded like a real champion, passing all the others except Crack Brigade.

Gallant Fox was on even terms with the Cassidy horse when they straightened out in the home stretch. Then came as pretty a stretch race as one could wish for, with Ellis and Sande both riding like demons.

They raced as a team until the sixteenth pole, where Gallant Fox pulled away sufficiently to win by three-quarters of a length. The short breather which the canny Sande gave his mount just before the turn for home may well have been the deciding factor.

Gallant Fox paid $4 straight, $4.30 place and $2.90 show in the Mutuels. Crack Brigade returned his backers $7.20 and $4.60. Snowflake show price was $3.70.

Pirate Of Air Found Guilty

ST. LOUIS, May 9.—UP—The first air pirate in America was found guilty today of stealing music from the ether to rebroadcast on his private radio station.

The jury of 12 "ignoramuses" so characterized by Federal Judge Faris because of the technical jargon of witnesses, which neither he or the jurors could understand, found George W. Fellowes guilty on three of six counts. He will be sentenced tomorrow. The maximum penalty is five years in prison and a $5,000 fine on each count.

Fellowes, a washing machine salesman, private detective and an amateur radio operator, was specifically charged with violating the Federal Radio act, by setting up an unlicensed broadcasting station in his home, with interfering with interstate broadcasting, and with rebroadcasting musical programs without authority of licensed radio stations.

His station was seized and dismantled last December by federal agents. In addition to the fine and prison sentence which probably await him, Fellowes also faces deportation to Canada, his native country.

CHICAGO CUBS, ATHLETICS IN WINS

Major league standings presented a familiar appearance tonight with the Chicago Cubs and Philadelphia Athletics, the 1929 pennant winners in undisputed possession of the lead in the National and American leagues respectively.

The Cubs took the lead for the first time this season by defeating the New York Giants, 6 to 5, and the Athletics strengthened their advantage by slugging out a 9 to 4 win over the Cleveland Indians. The defeat dropped Cleveland to third place with Washington moving into the contender position.

American League:
Jimmy Fox's third inning homer with two runners on base gave the Athletics an early lead.

Lloyd Brown turned in his fourth victory of the season for the Washington Senators, defeating the Chicago White Sox, 14 to 3.

Johnson's wild pitch with the bases filled in the seventh inning gave the Detroit Tigers the winning run in their 5 to 4 triumph over the New York Yankees.

Tom Oliver, rookie Boston Red Sox outfielder, extended his hitting streak to 18 consecutive games and aided his team in beating the St. Louis Browns, 5 to 4.

National League:

Eighth inning doubles by Grimm, Hartnett and Stephenson and a single by Pitcher Hal Carlson gave the Cubs three runs and a 6 to 5 victory over the New York Giants.

Ray Benge held the Philadelphia Phillies to seven scattered hits and the Cincinnati Reds won the opener of a four game series, 3 to 1. The Brooklyn Robins broke their three game losing streak, defeating the Pittsburgh Pirates, 7 to 4. The Dodgers drove their former teammate, Jess Petty, from the mound in the eighth with a four run attack.

Bill Sherdel held the Boston Braves scoreless after they knocked Sylvester Johnson from the mound in the fourth inning and the St. Louis Cardinals won, 10 to 6.

Woman, 80, Still Follows Fashions, Paid For Trouble

VIENNA, May 9.—UP—Anna Csillag, a Hungarian woman, famous throughout Europe in the pre-bobbed days for a mass of blonde hair which dragged the floor even when she was standing erect—and her figure was that of a June—still goes with the fashion, although she is now almost 80.

In her home at Zalaegerszeg, Hungary, she was among the first to "bob" when short hair became the mode, and again one of the first to let it grow when Lorelei tresses began to fight Eton-cuts for supremacy.

For many years she allowed her brothers, who are manufacturers of cosmetics and pomades in Vienna, to exploit her looks as an advertising medium for their hair tonics. When the brothers died some years ago, the business then passed into the hands of others, who, she claims, cheated her out of part of the profits. Now she has ceased altogether to use any of the lotions which she once made famous and her hair, she says, is growing twice as fast as formerly, despite her age.

Family Honesty Pride Results In Jail Term

GREAT FALLS, Mont., May 9.—UP—Family pride in the honesty of the Kellys is the sole reason why Mike Kelly is behind the bars today.

Arrested for vagrancy, the well-known Mike was released on his own recognizance. Authorities, including the judge, hoped the genial Irishman would hop the next freight train and leave town. Officially he was ordered to appear in court on a certain day.

Came the day and the hour, and Michael staggered into the courtroom, preceded by an aroma of intoxicants so strong one could cut it with a knife.

"Judge," he announced proudly, "Here I yam. When I givesh me word, I kepsh it. Hic."

The magistrate sighed and looked grave. It was really too bad, but if Mike didn't have sense enough to beat it, he must take the consequences.

"Sixty days in jail for you," he announced.

BATTLE LOOMS ON ROBERTS NOMINATION

control of everything." But Roberts' friends, who have watched his skilful conduct of the oil cases growing out of the Teapot Dome senate investigation of 1923-24, believe his prestige is great enough, and his abilities so extraordinary as to overcome any such opposition.

On Oil Cases

The appointment appears not to be political, for Senator Reed, republican, Pennsylvania, recommended the retiring State Supreme Justice, Robert L. Von Moschizker above Roberts, Senator Grundy, republican, of Pennsylvania, was said not to have been consulted.

Strangely Roberts' fame as oil prosecutor rests on senate opposition. President Coolidge withdrew the name of Silas Strawn of Chicago, after naming Strawn and former senator Atlee Pomerene, of Ohio, as oil council, because of opposition to Strawn, and appointed Roberts instead. Chairman Norris of the judiciary committee said the nomination would be taken up Monday. It is anticipated that a subcommittee will be appointed to investigate, the same as in the Parker case. Many senators today were wary of committing themselves, but others commended the president for his choice.

Wets Scared

Senator Simmons, democrat of North Carolina, charged that the anti-prohibitionists stirred up a fight against Parker, and predicted that if Roberts is found to be a dry, there will be opposition. Examination of the Parker vote, however, disclosed wets and dries on both sides of the roll call.

Roberts is a native of Philadelphia, and like Justice Stone and other members of the court, has spent considerable time in teaching. He has had no judicial experience, except as a referee. The $20,000 a year salary as justice will mean a considerable sacrifice for him, as he is said to have a very lucrative practice, including the administration of large estates.

He was special assistant in the prosecution of espionage act cases during the world war in eastern Pennsylvania from 1918 to 1919. He is a director of the Bell Telephone company of America, and several other corporations.

Judge Praised

His conduct of the oil cases has been praised as perfect, technically. When he won the civil case cancellation of the Teapot Dome and Elk Hills leases, which the supreme court held to be fraudulent, but lost many of the criminal cases before juries. Harry F. Sinclair, the oil man, however, was sent to jail in two contempt cases, and former Interior Secretary Albert B. Fall is free on bond pending appeal of his conviction and one-year prison sentence on a bribery charge.

Roberts himself led in most of the court fights. He spoke determinedly and decisively, and wasted little time on the amenities cultivated by most jury lawyers. Outside the courtroom he was approachable and affable. He ate his lunches during the numerous trials here in a little basement restaurant with a few assistant district attorneys and newspapermen for "company."

When his friends have discussed supreme court possibilities with him, he has said always that he is a relatively poor man, and couldn't afford it now. The great honor and prestige of the place, however, apparently has won him over.

PLANS FOR NEW COAST HIGHWAY PROGRESSING

Preliminary work on the International Pacific highway, which will traverse the western sections of North and South America, is now under way in countries adjoining the United States, while steps have been taken in the Pacific coast states to effect a permanent organization to promote this project, reports the California State Automobile association.

Coordination of the efforts of the various organizations sponsoring this project is the aim of the various groups in the Pacific coast states supporting the plan. The board of directors of the California State Automobile association recently endorsed the proposed international highway, urging the federal government and western motor clubs to extend to nations north and south, cooperation to make this route a reality.

For more than a month a pathfinding party of five cars of the Automobile Club of Southern California officials, have been blazing a trail down the west coast to Mexico, which eventually will be transformed into an automobile highway. Now work has been started on establishing a route from Vancouver through British Columbia to Alaska, where it may meet a similar road in Uncle Sam's territory again, extending to Fairbanks.

The two points at which active work is now progressing on the proposed highway uniting eighteen nations and two continents, are farther apart than from New York to San Francisco. The automobile club party has reached Mexico City, the capital of the southern republic, and in Vancouver, B. C., preparations are under way to send a pathfinding caravan north toward Alaska. It is understood that the Canadian government will lend its aid to that part of the international highway that will pass through Canada, and already the United States government has intimated its willingness to construct its part of the road in Alaska, so that it does not require a far-flung glance to the future to visualize before long an automobile highway from Fairbanks, Alaska, to Mexico City, a distance approximating 6000 miles, of which a big portion is already travelable and 1600 miles of which already is the longest stretch of paved highway in the world.

THE PRISONER

Wall opened into window when you came,
I looked at trees again with quiet eyes,
Sate mountains with a boyish fresh surprise,
The room inside, however, stood the same.
I know now it will take much more than you,
Ere hills and trees resume their natural place,
Ere this dark sky return again to blue,
It will take more than sunlight on your face.

The prisoner is not at length set free
By friend or pardon coming to his cell,
Nor even by the turning of the key
In actual lock. It takes more than a bell
To sound a man's escape in his own ear.
Yet stay! I am most free when you are near,
MARSHALL SCHACHT.

FATHERS AND DAUGHTERS

AMBASSADOR MORROW, upon arriving from the London Naval Conference, simply couldn't wait to see his married daughter, Anne Morrow Lindbergh. His wife has just told how promptly he rang her up from London on the radiophone.

Have you heard from Anne since that terrible ride from California to New York? The signing of a naval power agreement, the coming campaign for a Senatorial nomination—neither of these important public affairs could make one of our most distinguished and useful public men forget that he is the devoted father of daughters. In no role, it seems to us, is the American man more successful, more deserving the appreciation of the American woman.

Mr. Morrow's trans-oceanic telephone message is a brief dramatization, in the novel of the peculiarly deep, tender, understanding affection which usually exists in this country between father and daughter, though usually ignored by song story scenarios. It's mother love which earns the mammy songs, on the one hand, and, on the other, the gloomy Freudian analyses of mother complexes and their disastrous results. Yet father love—especially for father's girls—is not only a beautiful personal relationship but a social force worth comment.

BEHIND the American girl—perhaps chiefly responsible for her higher education? Even if some American men originally opposed women's colleges, other men founded and endowed and directed them, while many other men uncomplainingly paid the bills for their daughters' attendance. The fathers couldn't look for any personal benefit, either.

The only satisfaction which his daughter's college training gives the average father is a generous for in her own satisfaction. All through the four years he misses her! Some bright, beautiful thing seems gone from the house, with her flying hair and feet, her busy telephoning, her laughter, her way of sitting on the arm of his chair or dropping a kiss on his bald spot. Yet he doesn't raise objections even when, after school and college, the modern American daughter still refuses to stay at home.

She prefers to "do something." She wants to be "on her own." Why not blaming her natural instinct for adventure and independence. But how far would she get with them if her father offered violent opposition? Instead, he lets her go without a word. He even helps her financially while her career is getting started. He helps her move by praising her, by beaming proudly over her latest achievement.

IT IS only necessary to read novels written in other countries to realize how generous the American father is to his girls. In how many typically American families does there exist what seems to be the common European assumption that the education, the allowance, the inheritance of the son should be more than that of the daughter—that she should do the economizing, if economy be necessary?

The American father's reaction is, we think, just the opposite. He is likely to believe that his son, being a man, can and should look out for himself—that a little roughing it won't hurt him. But daughters are different—they must be taken care of at all costs. And as for denying her a fur coat or a new evening dress, because her brother's tastes are expensive.

A DISH A DAY

Copyright Press Publishing Company (New York World) 1930

Easterners have been slow to adopt many fruits and vegetables which make an almost daily appearance on the tables in California, and this is due to a large extent to the fact that little is known about how to cook them.

Dealers in several local markets tell me that they have almost no call for artichokes, even though they are at their best at this season. This is a situation that ought to be remedied at once, for there is no vegetable that can be made more pleasing and appetizing if it is properly prepared.

Small artichokes are excellent, merely boiled in well-salted water and served with butter sauce, but the large artichokes which are more common in the market at this season are better suited to stuffing. They are excellent to serve with roast beef or veal, or with a vegetable dinner.

Select artichokes of uniform size and just half as many as you have people to serve. This recipe serves six.

STUFFED ARTICHOKE

- 3 large artichokes
- 1 egg
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 teaspoon white pepper
- 1 teaspoon lemon juice
- 1 tablespoon butter
- 1 cup bread or cracker crumbs
- 4 strips crisp bacon, chopped

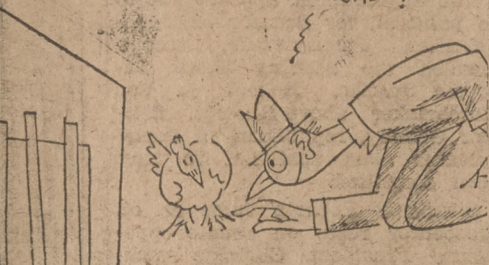

Soak the artichokes, standing them upside down, in cold water for fifteen or twenty minutes. Wash them thoroughly, remove the bruised outer leaves, cut off the stems, and boil them in salted water to cover for fifteen minutes. Drain them and when cool enough to handle, cut them in half. With a spoon carefully remove the pithy substance near the base, and fill them with the following stuffing.

Beat the egg and season with lemon juice and butter, which has been melted. Stir in the cracker crumbs and chopped bacon. Put a spoonful of the stuffing in each halved artichoke, place them in a buttered pan and heat them in a moderate oven for about ten minutes. A little grated Parmesan cheese can be sprinkled over them if you like.

You and Your Child

By Irma Morris

Obstinate?

"SUSAN pick up your pajamas," said mother, dictatorially. "No," came the surprising reply. Mother was very much annoyed. This was not her idea of the way a three-year-old should act. "Pick them up at once!" she reiterated in a threatening tone. Susan came a "No." "Susan Jones, you pick up those pajamas this minute!" mother said, very much wrought up, approaching the child in a menacing manner. But Susan stood her ground. Mother spanked her very hard. Susan was adamant! Then father took a hand. He coaxed, bribed and finally he also spanked! By this time Susan was hysterical, but nevertheless, showed no sign of yielding. At last, father took her hands and forced her little fingers to clasp the pajamas and hang them up. He considered himself victorious. But was he?

It is remarkable how obstinate young children can be. They will allow themselves to be half killed without giving in! What is accomplished by a scene like the one described in a threatening tone? They gain their children in a justified in handling children in this manner, as they thought it was necessary to "break" a young one's will. But today they feel very differently. They want their children to have strength of character. The modern parent, above everything else, that his child will develop an independent character. The modern parent, "fraid cat," is certainly not his ideal. "But what can I do when my child refuses to do as he is told?" many parents question. First of all, I'd like to sound a word of warning as to what not to do. Don't start a scene. Don't let the matter descend to a tug of war between you and your child. Many refusals could be prevented if parents gave their orders in a less dictatorial way, in a kinder, more pleasant tone. Had Susan's mother said, pleasantly, "Susan, dear, you forgot to hang up your pajamas," do you suppose she would have called out resistance in the child? But, just for the sake of argument, let's suppose that Susan, feeling out of sorts, did refuse to comply with her mother's suggestion. What then? A mother of ingenuity could have gotten around the situation in many different ways. She might have said, "I know my big girl wants to help her mother, or 'let's hurry up and straighten up' the house. I'm daddly wants to take us out," or a dozen other things. Humoring the little one, you say? Better far to humor her than to create a feeling of antagonism and rebellion. We should never meet our children on their own childish level, but rather with good humor, self-control and understanding.

Bags Take On an Antique Air

VALUABLE old bead embroideries have more significance in evening bags than do those that have not ripened in color with the years. Treated to new mountings, such bags are lovely in appearance. A bit of antique brocade dating from 1860 has a suitable mounting of old silver.

When there is no such treasure among the family heirlooms, a modern bag will serve quite as well provided it is of gold lame with a rhinestone studded frame and a large turquois motif set below a sturdy ring of onyx which forms a handle. — or the bag is of equally as elegant quality.

Cleaning the Brushes

IT IS all right to use the same brush for painting with which you have varnished, but never use a brush for varnishing which has been used for painting. To clean paint brushes use turpentine, gasoline or benzine. The brush you have used for enamel should be cleaned with turpentine, so should varnish brushes. The shellac brush can best be cleaned with denatured alcohol.

Modernizing the Home

By Alma Zais

FURNITURE OF THIS TYPE—DELICATE AND GRACEFUL, YET SIMPLE AND PRACTICAL—WOULD BE IDEAL FOR MRS. K'S ROOM

PROBLEM NO. 1

Dear Miss Zais:

I would like some suggestions for furnishing an odd-piece dining room. The walls are in cream with eggshell woodwork. The room is in a semi-detached house with the windows on the right-hand side on coming into it from the living room. We have the sun most of the day.

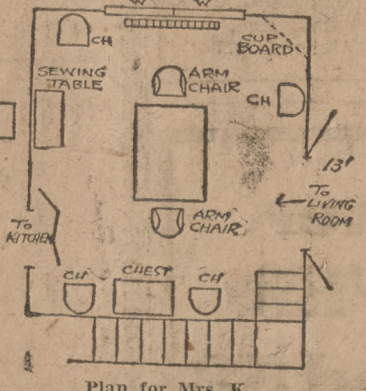

We have a gateleg table and small Oriental rug with mulberry background and blue bars. I would like to buy pieces which could be used in the living room later on as some time in the future I would like to get a Duncan Phyfe type dining room set. I write to thank you for this information in advance. (Mrs.) L. K.

Wherein It Is Better to Plan for One Room at a Time

Copyright Press Publishing Company (New York World) 1930

REALLY do we take the negative side of a problem that is presented for discussion. But today we feel moved to say a blunt no to the pet plan of one of our readers who, in our judgment, would make an extravagant mistake in carrying out her scheme.

We take it that Mrs. K's living room is already provided with suitable furniture to make it comfortable, and that the dining room alone is in need of new equipment. Why not, then, make the start in the direction of its permanent scheme instead of collecting odd pieces to be used later on in the living room?

Aside from a pair of open armchairs, a side table and perhaps a set of shelves to be used for china and later for books, there are few dining room necessities that would fit perfectly into the living room scheme. Mrs. K. already possesses a gateleg table to be used for true present for dining. This can go into the other room any time. Then we should just forget about purchasing other interchangeable pieces, and buy with the thought of the Duncan Phyfe or Sheraton dining room in mind.

First, the room will need dining chairs, and while the two types mentioned may not be quite as comfortable with the gateleg table as would ladder-backs or Windsor chairs, they can be used very nicely, and it will be better to have them already established for the permanent scheme than afterward to find four or six chairs on hand for disposition in the living room.

Next can come a serving table similar to the one shown in the photograph, or a simple dropleaf table will answer the purpose. In lieu of a sideboard it would seem that a good reproduction of a fine old Sheraton chest would be better for this room with the staircase extending along one wall. It is not possible to visualize correctly the exact type of construction of the stairs, but if the wall space above the chest permits it, a convex colonial mirror or a Sheraton mirror would be very effective in this position; a colorful picture may be used above the serving table.

Now—particularly while the furniture is being collected—nothing would lend a more gracious touch to the dining room than a beautiful screen placed as indicated before the kitchen door. It will both furnish and decorate the room and help to create an impression of completeness. For the Duncan Phyfe or Sheraton scheme the screen might be one of scenic wall paper in keeping with the period and the colors chosen for the room.

If this plan of furnishing is carried out instead of the idea of buying odd pieces to be used in the living room, the investment will be consistent in all respects. Floor covering, draperies and upholstery can be selected now for the permanent scheme and there will be no misfits or incongruities in either room. Then, when it is time to improve the living room, by the same gradual process, Mrs. K. may select furniture which not only fits perfectly into her plans for that scheme but which lives up to the character of her beautiful dining room.

In a word, just as the truly successful wardrobe is achieved by direct buying for a definite effect—so, as contrasted with the "make-do" system—so the most pleasing decorative schemes result from this same fidelity to a well-planned program for each room.

PROBLEM NO. 2

Dear Miss Zais:

I am a young man, twenty-one years of age, and am desirous to decorate my bedroom. Would you kindly help me? I have studied the floor plan very carefully and have evolved the arrangement which I have drawn on the following page. The room is small, so the space and possibilities for arrangement are limited.

The walls are decorated with yellowish gold paper. The woodwork is white enamel and the floor a light oak varnish. As to furniture that I desire to use I have a very fine full-size four-poster bed of mahogany; a chest of drawers, also of mahogany; an end table with book trough of walnut, and a side chair of maple with a rush-bottom seat.

I intend buying a desk on the order of a Gov. Winthrop; also a Chatham chair that I have seen in one of the stores; and also a rug or carpet. I also would desire some sort of rock into which I might place my books.

I have an electric candle lamp on a wrought iron stand; a bronze finished bridge lamp with a parchment shade and decorated with some figures out of the Greek mythology; and a small brass table lamp with an amber shade of mica.

As to minor details, I have a few prints of sea motifs (predominating color green); and a fine pair of bronze book ends (also of ships). In offering any suggestions for any color details, I should like to suggest that I prefer green (such as olive green). S. E.

A Colonial Room for a Man

MRS. E'S original plan gave an excellent placement of furniture, and one which—if he is satisfied with it—needs little if any change. The diagram illustrated is given to suggest another possible location for the bed and desk.

The beauty of the four-poster has a better chance to be seen in this position and the desk with the hanging shelf above it makes a more friendly group when seen by one entering the room than the chest shown on the original floor plan.

Since green is Mr. E's preferred color, he may emphasize it by using a rug in plain green of a soft or olive tone. For curtains he will like a chintz having an old Colonial scenic pattern in rich colors, including some red and tan against a pale green ground. These may be had in pastoral designs, ship motifs, hunting scenes, reproductions of old maps, etc., all particularly suitable for the man's room and it would be good to bind the curtains with plain red chintz.

The chair would be effective if covered in a striped fabric repeating the colors found in the carpet and curtains; the cushion for the desk chair might be in red. The bed spread of plain buff linen bound with

SYNOPSIS

Only the sudden intervention of the bully shipman, Shep, has prevented Dawn, a girl from being dedicated by the African tribe as the mystic bride of a pagan god. Dawn, though fair of complexion, believes herself black of blood. Tom Allen, young plantation owner, infatuated with her, hears talk concerning him she is white. Allen and other Britishers are prisoners of war, the Germans having seized the British territory. Dawn awaits the initiation services with dread. Shep, who dominates the blacks with his whip, has sinister designs on her. Tom is anxious to have it out with the hulking giant.

INSTALLMENT NINE

Dawn wanted to know how he knew. "Because," Tom explained simply, "I had to see you. I go away tonight." Dawn's smile gave way to quick anxiety. "You go back to England?" Tom shook his head. "No, I go to the new camp." The assurance that he was to remain near her gave Dawn vast comfort. It was a feeling of comfort, however, dispelled by the recollection that very soon she would be parted from him perhaps forever. "Mooda," she whispered slowly, "she say I go to be a goddess." "Yes," Tom answered gravely. "I've heard."

Her next words came in a torrent. Speaking with a bitterness that shep had never known her to have, Dawn, as shep thought her recital as if fearful of being stopped. She spoke as if she found relief in ridding herself of the words, as if she were accepting a deserved scourge. "Tonight," she cried wildly, "I go to the jungle with many battles. There they leave me alone—in the light of the moon and the stars. Dawn's body must be bathed in white light—for to make sweet bride for great old Mooda!"

Decision of the pagan rite revolted Tom. "It's unspeakable," he protested. "Inhuman! Dawn, have you ever wondered what your father would say to this?" "I never see my father," returned Dawn sadly. "Mooda tell me he was great chief."

"Did it ever occur to you that your father might have been a white man?" "Oh, no, no—I ask Mooda about it, Tom."

"And what does Mooda say?" "Mooda say the once I many many years African girl, white like me, is born. It means that Malungu loves her and must have her for his bride."

Tempted as he was to convince the girl that she was not a child of the black Mooda, Tom finally decided that such things could only distress her. It was too late to reclaim her from the wooden bridegroom. Such knowledge would only serve to add to the toments already prescribed for her as the isolated bride of a lifeless idol.

"But I love you, Dawn," he exclaimed impulsively, taking her into his arms. "I love you more than any of your gods could love you."

"That makes me very happy, Tom," she was weeping softly. "Then Dawn, let me take you with me. I can't leave you here."

"Ch, Tom, it would mean death to us both. Maybe the lives of all your people would be on my head, if I went with you. I will wait for you. I'll be safe I am all men—in the temple."

Pigeon arrived with the kits. Holding the girl more closely to him, Tom kissed her again and again. "I'll come for you, Dawn," he promised and hurried away with her. She stood and watched them vanish into the jungle. Upon reaching his jungle retreat, after his public humiliation at the canteen, Shep Keyes entered upon dark plans of vengeance. Tom's punishment he intended to trust to his whip, but the means of penalizing Dawn for her part in the incident was something that called for different measures.

Tonight, Shep knew, Dawn, accompanied by her eight maids, would proceed to a jungle clearing to offer her body to the purifying rays of the moon. Familiar with the ritual, Shep knew that Dawn would be chained to that crude altar and helpless. So much was already arranged.

As the whip man studied his plans he was beset with the fear that they would be somehow upset by Tom. While he surely willing to admit it even to himself, he feared Tom no little. Not that he would have hesitated to meet Tom in a physical encounter, with or without his whip; rather he was afraid of his influence with Dawn. He therefore resolved at a discreetly careful not to be seen en route to the ritual ground.

Accurately timing the departure of Dawn from the canteen, Shep hid in the underbrush and watched the procession. To anybody but Shep, it was a weirdly impressive sight. Attended by eight maids, Dawn led the cortege with Mooda, their steps marking time to the piper's moaning music. The shimmering gowns of the marchers caught the moonlight and gave their wearers the appearance of a living parade.

Just inside the jungle, Mooda directed the marchers to a well-cleared trail that wound upward through almost impenetrable foliage. Shep, when he felt himself undetected, darted into the jungle and followed at a discreet distance. The piper's notes, guiding him through the darkness.

In another part of the jungle Tom and Pigeon were battling their way over unfamiliar trails. As they proceeded farther into the jungle, they lost the light of the moon and frequently were forced to pause and examine their map by the light of matches.

Tom, with a nonchalance he did not feel, chided Pigeon for permitting himself to be led astray. But Pigeon, who had already bristled at Shep's whip, had suffered severely from the snaps of snapping branches, was eager to recover the trail.

"You stay here, Boss," he counseled, unloading his pack. "An' I'll scout out and find where we're at."

"Since you're the guide," said Tom, unslung his pack, "perhaps you'd better do the reconnoitering. Personally, I believe, we're on the right trail."

After the Cockney had lost himself in the darkness, Tom began to recount the events of the day. As they conversed, though his mind was concerned for Dawn, grew greater. He did not restrict himself to the permanent loss of her even though Eric dispatched him to England and the natives hid her in a temple in the deepest hide-away of the jungle.

The jungle was appallingly quiet. Once he fancied he heard music such as the piper had played during the afternoon. But this he laid to his imagination. It came to him again and again, faintly and brokenly, until he was persuaded that he really heard it. It gradually struck him that this music was being played for Dawn's ceremony. This realization only served to increase his nervousness. He paced the small area, impatient for the return of Pigeon.

He did not realize that Pigeon had been gone for a considerable time until he searched for a cigarette and found the package empty. He had smoked the last of them, including the one he had promised to save for his companion. Fearful that Pigeon had met with trouble or lost himself in the jungle, he set out in search of him.

Pigeon, after progressing a few hundred yards into the thicket, remembered, with an eloquent oath, that he had left the trail map with Tom. Rather than return for it, he resolved to trust to luck. He plunged onward blindly. His chief fear was the swamp, but he was reasonably certain that it lay to his right.

Without warning, Pigeon's feet shot from under him and before he was aware of what it was all about he was plunged downward, landing heavily on a rotten trail. When he recovered his breath, he felt like cheering. He believed he had stumbled upon the trail he was searching for.

But his impulse to cheer was quickly throttled. Turning at the sound of a footfall, he beheld the forbidding face of Shep. At first Pigeon suspected that he was beholding a ghost. Indeed, he fervently wished that the figure would turn out to be a ghost. But Shep's hostile voice soon dispelled any hope for that miracle.

"Is yo' followin' Dawn?" asked Shep.

Normal exercise and diet habits should be encouraged. But when necessary there's no harm in taking nujol, since it works mechanically and can't disturb the normal functions of any organ of the body. Particularly with girls, there are times when nujol should always be taken. Take a spoonful every night for a few days. It's a thoroughly safe and harmless method. It won't cause distress or gas pains or griping."
